

Larry Gibson, professor, was awarded the Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Diversity Recognition Award from the Baltimore campus of the University of Maryland at the Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Commemoration ceremony in January.

Daniel Goldberg, professor, authored "E-Tax: Fundamental Tax Reform and the Transition to a Currency-Free Economy," 20 Virginia Tax Review 1 (2000).

Diane Hoffmann, associate dean, director of the Law and Health Care Program and professor, presented "Gender Differences in the Treatment of Pain," at the Department of Veterans Affairs' "2nd Annual Leadership Conference: Pain Management and End of Life Care" in Alexandria, Va., in March 2000. She also co-authored, with Anita Tarzian, "The Girl Who Cried Pain: Bias Against Women in the Treatment of Pain," 29 Journal of Law, Medicine & Ethics 13-27 (2001) for the American Society of Law, Medicine & Ethics.

Marina Hsieh, assistant professor, presented "Law Schools in the Struggle for Human Rights," at the Founder's Celebration at American University Washington College of Law, Washington, D.C., in April.

David Hyman, professor, presented "Empirical Study of Crime and Punishment" for the Federalist Faculty Division Conference in San Francisco in January.

Andrew King, associate professor, published "Sunday Law in the Nineteenth Century," in 64 Albany Law Review 675 (2001).

Joan O'Sullivan, assistant professor, presented "Informed Consent and Related Legal Issues" at the "Third Annual Consensus Conference on Behavioral and Mental Health Supports," Division of Mental Retardation Services in Nashville, Tenn., in April.

Robert Percival, director of the Environmental Law Program and professor, wrote "Separation of Powers, the Presidency and the Environment," 21 Land, Resources & Environmental Law 25 (2001). He presented "Presidential Management of the Administrative State: The Not-so-Unitary Executive," at the conference "Politics and Policy: Presidential Administrations and Administrative Law" at Duke University Law School in March. Additionally, he presented "At a Crossroads: Science, Regulation and the Law" at the Biotech Law & Litigation Summit in Palo Alto, Calif., in April.

Peter E. Quint, professor, authored "The Border Guard Trials and the East German Past—Seven Arguments," 48 American Journal of Comparative Law 541 (2001).

Karen H. Rothenberg, dean and professor, published "The Practice of Law," 31 University of Toledo Law Review 731 (2000); and "Consent to the Use of Stored DNA for Genetics Research: A Survey of Attitudes in the Jewish Population," (with Marc Schwartz, Linda Joseph, Judith Benkendorf and Caryn Lerman) 98 American Journal of Medical Genetics 336-342 (2001). She also presented "Genetic Discrimination" at "The Cancer Family: At the Intersection of Science and Society" conference held at the University of Virginia, Charlottesville, in March.

Rena Steinzor, professor, presented "EPA and Her Sisters at 30: Devolution, Revolution, or Reform?" at a conference commemorating the 30th anniversary of the creation of the Environmental Protection Agency at Duke University Law School in Durham, N.C., in December 2000. She also wrote "Myths of the Reinvented State," 29 Capital University Law Review 223 (2001).

Edward Tomlinson, professor, published "Judge Chasanow's Criminal Law and Procedure Opinions: What They Tell Us About the Judge," 59 Maryland Law Review 20-37 (2000).

Marley Weiss, professor, authored a chapter, "The Right to Strike in Essential Services Under United States Labor Law," in Relaciones Laborales en el Siglo XXI (Patricia Kurczyn Villalobos ed. 2000). In addition, she presented the following papers: "Free Trade and the Enforcement of Labor Standards: Comparisons Based on North American Regional Integration" at a conference on "Fundamental Rights and EU Enlargement: Perspectives for a Social Europe," sponsored by Central European University in Budapest, Hungary, in November 2000; "Lessons From the European Union on the Roles of Trade Unions in Globalization" at a symposium on "The Role of Labor Unions in the Twenty-First Century Economy," held by the University of Pennsylvania Journal of Labor and Employment Law in January 2001; and "The North American Agreement on Labor Cooperation (NAALC): Deepening, Widening or Promoting Development?" at an ALI-ABA program on "Labor Law in North America," in Scottsdale, Ariz., in March.

School of Law faculty share their expertise not only in the classroom but also through scholarly publications and presentations. Following is a sampling of their recent activities.

As this issue of JD went to press, the law school community was saddened by the passing of Professor Stanley Herr. Please plan to read a tribute to him and his work in the spring issue of JD.

1945–2001

Stanley Herr, professor, authored a monograph, “Self-Determination, Autonomy, and Alternatives to Guardianship,” University of New Hampshire, Durham, New Hampshire (March 2001). He also submitted two amicus briefs to the U.S. Supreme Court: Penry v. Johnson, in which the court overturned a death sentence and ordered a new sentencing hearing for a Texan with mental retardation, and McCarver v. North Carolina, in which the court will decide if the execution of any person with mental retardation violates the Eighth Amendment prohibition on cruel and unusual punishment. Additionally, he published several articles in Israel, including “Disability Rights: Old Challenges and New Opportunities,” in the Israel Bar Association

Journal (April 2001). Herr received the American Bar Association’s Paul Hearne Disability Rights Award at its annual meeting in August and the Herbert S. Garten Pro Bono Special Projects Award for lifetime work on disability and homeless persons’ representation at the annual meeting of the Maryland State Bar Association in June. He also was awarded the inaugural Stanley S. Herr Award for Advocacy Leadership by the Baltimore Association for Retarded Citizens in May.

Barbara Bezdek, associate professor, presented a paper, “Contractual Welfare: Non-Accountability and Diminished Democracy Through Local Government Contracts for Welfare-to-Work Services,” at the “Fordham Urban Law Journal Symposium on Redefining the Public Sector: Accountability and Democracy in the Era of Privatization” in February.

Richard Booth, professor, co-authored Corporation Finance—Cases and Materials, 3d ed. West (2000) (with Robert W. Hamilton). He also published several articles: “Chronology of the Evolution of the MBCA,” 56 Bus. Law. 63 (2000); “A Minimalist Approach to Corporation Law,” 34 Ga. L. Rev. 431 (2000); and “Investor Diversification and Corporation Law (Or Roll Over Berle and Means),” 25 Del. J. Corp. L. 81 (2000).

C. Christopher Brown, associate professor, published “One Step Closer to Democracy: African-American Voting in Late Nineteenth-Century Cambridge,” in 95 Maryland Historical Magazine 428 (Winter 2000). He also wrote The Civil War Days of Captain Charles D. Roush, Company B, 6th Pennsylvania Regiment Reserves, published by Black Classics Press (2000).

Douglas Colbert, professor, presented “The Impact of Zero Tolerance Law Enforcement” as part of the Milton Eisenhower Forum at Johns Hopkins University in January.

Karen Czapsanskiy, professor, served on the panel “Stop in the Name of Love: Thinking and TANF Reauthorization” at the American Association of Law Schools annual meeting in San Francisco in January.

Abraham Dash, professor, authored “Office of Independent Counsel and the Fatal Flaw: They Are Left to Twist in the Wind,” 60 Maryland Law Review 26 (2001).